CODE OF CONDUCT

1. HQ at base camp. All teams must inform organizers of their planned trip to the cave: departing time, objective, and planned return time. Equally, they should not forget to report when they are back.
2. Poor weather conditions may hamper the cave exploration and prevent anyone from going further than -600m. For information, five tragic accidents due to heavy rain and flooding occurred in the past.
3. This year's objective is to take as much waste as possible out of the cave. Each team commits to contribute!

RECOMMENDATIONS TO BE FOLLOWED

- Enter the cave only if you are fit and experienced in using Alpine caving technique (Single Rope Technique).
- All cavers should carry an emergency blanket, food, lighting and enough body warmers to withstand the very cold and wet conditions in the cave. Having a lightweight stove per team is also a good idea for preparing hot drinks and meals.
- The minimum group size for moving through the cave is 2 people. 3 is ideal, in particular when ropes are in use.
- All teams should be able to carry a mid-rope rescue, if needed.
- No one stay alone in the cave: adjust the group's pace to the slowest.
- Be prepared to help any team in trouble even if it impacts your own trip.
- As a matter of courtesy, priority on ropes is given to those climbing back up, except in Hurricane Pitch (puits de l'Ouragan).
- A "bottoming" trip must be reconsidered if getting as far as the Salle des Treize at -500m takes you more than 4 hours. In that case, please turn back.
- At Camp 1 at -500m, priority is given to teams returning from the bottom and heading back to the surface. The same rule applies at the surface camp.
- Any damaged equipment (ropes, karabiners, slings...) should be reported in order to be replaced asap.
